The development of Diamond and Pearl was announced at a Nintendo press conference in the fourth calendar quarter of 2004. The games were designed with DS features. It is projected to be released in Japan in 2005, but was shipped in 2006. In promoting the games, Nintendo sold a limited edition Nintendo DS Lite in Japan, and held a party for release, celebrating their North American release. The games received generally positive reviews. Most critics praised the addition of Wi-Fi features and felt that the gameplay, although it didn't receive much of an update from previous games, is still attracting. Reviewers were divided into graphics, however, and the sound was criticized as primitive. The games enjoyed greater commercial success than their predecessors Game Boy Advance: with about 18 million copies sold worldwide, Diamond and Pearl sold more than 2 million units larger than Ruby and Sapphire and nearly 6 million more units than FireRed and LeafGreen, while outselling their successors, black and white, by more than 2 million copies.
